I commenting on the political corruption in Ohio the language of the Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot is to the point and covers the case. It says: "The fact is that politics has become so corrupt in Ohio that both parties take a hand in election practices which in other States would be considered decidedly irregular and subject the participants to punishment. Clincinnati is the hot-bed of political corruption. There has not been a fair election held in that city for years. Its politics has partaken of the immoral taint that has even affected its courts of justice.

justice. But no party has contributed more to this demoralization than the Republicans. Through the agency of United States Marshals employed to work in the interest of that party it was a common thing to import colored voters by the hundreds from Kentucky, and there hasn't been within the last twenty years an important election in which Ohio was not carried for the Republicans by dishonest means.
